IRISH HANDS THAT BUILT AMERICA

LULAROSE

For 80 years, the 11 ironworkers in the iconic photo have remained unknown, and now, thanks to new research, two of them have been identified. The researcher was in a pub in Galway, when he noticed a copy of the photograph hanging in a corner. Beside the photograph was a note from the son of a local immigrant who left Ireland for New York in the 1920s: "This is my dad on the far right and my uncle-in-law on the far left." They asked the bartender about the note, he put them in contact with the author of the note that same night.

BLACK LIVES MATTER

As protests against racist police brutality sweep across the United States and the world in 2020, rallying cries of "Black Lives Matter" echo through our streets and our digital avenues. As we all digest the news and think about how to respond and participate at such a pivotal time, it's important to recognize what Black Lives Matter really means.

Let's face it, not all of us could attend the protests in 2020. So we produced this beautiful display as a nod to those who did. Put it on your desk, in your reception at work, show everyone just where you stand on racial injustice.

OFF YOU GO

Contains Real Tea Bag

In a nod to those who have left Ireland or to those of Irish heritage leaving home for the first time, we introduce our 'On ya'get' display. Encapsulated in the center is a genuine Irish tea bag, meant to be a reminder of the warmth and love that is an Irish home.

The background image is a traditional Celtic symbol printed in gold. At the front, a map of Ireland with small messages dotted around. Its main feature, a simple fairwell written as it would be spoken but roughly translated would mean;

I love you very much, not going to get upset. So take this gift. We will have a cup of tea when you get back home. Off you go now.

Technical Specification

3 layers of crystal clear acrylic
Overall dimensions - 1" x 4" x 6"
Hand cut
Diamond polished edges
Masterfully printed

LULAROSE DOT COM

The Irish are the heaviest tea drinkers per capita in the world, averaging four to six cups per day with many people drinking even more.

Should you be invited into an Irish household, you can be sure that as soon as you cross the threshold you'll be offered tea as an icebreaker. Once you've finished that cup, you will be offered another.

Enclosed in our perspective display (as shown) is a piece of the Thermal Control System Blanket that flew in space as part of the Space Shuttle Atlantis mission STS-86. This mission took place over almost 11 days beginning September 26th to October 6th, 1997. The Shuttle orbited earth 170 times and travelled almost 4.2 million earth miles. This simple artifact represents the ultimate adventure and fantasy of kids and adults alike. Imagine what it must be like to leave earth?, the anticipation of flight. 10.9.8.7.6.....that count down.

The roar of the rockets, the g-force pushing back like an elephant on your chest. The spectacular views as you look down on this beautiful planet. So close, yet so very very far away.

The ultimate gift for the space lover in your life.

The ultimate gift for the space lover in your life.

"We choose to go to the moon in this decade and do the other things, not because they are easy, but because they are hard, because that goal will serve to organize and measure the best of our energies and skills, because that challenge is one that we are willing to accept, one we are unwilling to postpone, and one which we intend to win."

John F. Kennedy

Each display comes with a genuine piece of Space Shuttle. May be different to that shown

Display will contain genuine artifact from one of the following craft;
